Adopted Like Me - Home | Facebook

When I was three years old, my mother told me that I was adopted. She told me that my real parents were sparkly mermaids who emerged from the ocean via gilded ladders and birthed me, with my furry dark head of hair, onto the shores of the Mediterranean Sea in a basket woven with pearls. And thus began the Book of Harris. Actually, no.

This Is What It Feels Like To Be Adopted | Thought Catalog

I find so many of the ideas about what it's like to be adopted are just wrong and unrealistic. So let's go there. Adoption is Not A Party. One of the first things people often say to me when they find out I'm adopted is, "That's so awesome!" While I appreciate the sentiment, it can be hard to then explain why it doesn't always ...

What Being Adopted Is Really Like | Ravishly

Doubtful. So responding by telling her that my son is adopted didn't feel like the right answer to me. If total strangers had suggested a resemblance between my parents and me and their reaction was to explain that I was adopted, I think that would have made me feel like any resemblance we shared by coincidence was something they were not proud of.
